

CE/ID313 Learning and The Art Of Teaching

Dr Jason CH Yap | 1.5CR

About the Course

Learning is a central feature of everyday life. Human beings are created by God as “learning creatures” with curiosity, intelligence, and an amazing capacity to learn and grow throughout an entire lifetime. This course is designed to shape reflective practitioners of learning and teaching. It is meant to equip people for enhanced and more effective teaching in a wide variety of settings, including their workplaces, congregations, community organisations, or formal school or university settings. Its structure is built around exploring nine inter-related components: learners, teachers, settings, contexts, worldview, goals, content, methods, and assessment.
